

Where's the Line?

Ethical Boundaries in the Helping Professions

Making decisions when helping people is a daunting task! Many professionals find themselves in deep water fast, and without help they will sink. Without clear, calm, and confident ethical decision making professionals and the people they work with, suffer.

Where's the Line? Ethical Boundaries in the Helping Professions is a boutique workshop designed to help you revisit and refine the ethical boundaries in which you work. This workshop gives you the opportunity to refresh, reflect, and revise how to truly "help" in your profession.

- What factors influence ethical boundaries ?
- How do you distinguish between your personal and professional boundaries?
- What are the signs that you may be crossing the line?
- Who is at risk if you cross the line?
- How do you deal with those tricky situations?
- Is your work having an impact on your personal wellbeing?
